

Food Microbiology for Non Microbiologists

Updated: 12 May 2011

One day $550 inc GST

Course Outline

This is a one-day course aimed at giving a general introduction to food microbiology – the good, the bad and the ugly! The course is designed for those involved in the production of food who, although not microbiologists, need to understand the principles of microbiology with a focus on food safety for effective development and implementation of HACCP or food safety programs or anyone who has an interest in the biological food safety hazards. Demonstrations and practical exercises are included.

Course Content

- Classification of micro-organisms, their characteristics and sources
- Types of foods and food processes where micro-organisms and pathogens are likely to occur
- Examples of food borne outbreaks
- Microbial sampling and test methods
- Microbial standards and criteria
- Interpretation of microbial test results

What's Included with the course fee

Course notes, Certificate of Attendance, lunch, morning and afternoon refreshments.

Prerequisites

There are no prerequisites other than a willingness to learn about "bad bugs". No prior knowledge of microbiology is expected.

Who Should Attend?

This course is designed for personnel who need a basic introduction to microbiology to enable them to gain a better understanding of food borne pathogens and their impact on food safety.
