ADVANCING FOOD SAFETY

NEW ZEALAND INSTITUTE OF FOOD SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY (INC)

Good Manufacturing Processes (GMP) Resources

Advancing Food Safety are now suppliers of the Good Manufacturing Processes book and Video/DVD, complied by the New Zealand Institute of Food Science and Technology (NZIFST)

About the Book

The Food Industry Guide to Good Manufacturing Practice builds on an earlier version published in 1992. Designed to be user friendly, the guide is crammed with training tips, step by step decision trees and useful hints.

Food Industry Guide to Good Manufacturing Practice is certainly affordable for any sized food business.The food industry manufactures food which consumers eat for their nutritional needs and for enjoyment. Every can of beans, every fish fillet, every loaf, every apple is eaten. The aim of good manufacturing practice in the food industry is to provide food that meets the consumers' needs and wants, and also gives them the security of safety and reliability.

About the Video/DVD

The video/DVD "Food Safety: Introductory Training in the Food Industry" is a fundamental food safety training aid aimed at New Zealand food manufacturers. It is designed to facilitate discussion and to illustrate the different means of achieving food safety over a variety of industries and companies (of various sizes). Topics covered include:

What is food safety?
Who is responsible?
Contamination of Food
Microbiology
Temperature control
Food storage
Personal hygiene
Food preparation and service
Cleaning and sanitising
Pest control.
